Preface

The Greek language of the New Testament is such a precise language that once known, the reader will no longer be handicapped in the Word. It is not possible to interpret completely the thoughts of the original author without going to the original author's language. That means going back to the Hebrew and Greek. Having just a cursory knowledge of the original language helps greatly in the understanding of the Scriptures, but falls short, especially for the English speaker, in understanding the effect and extent of a particular verse.

Luther wrote an important letter, "To the Councilmen of all cities in Germany that they establish and maintain Christian Schools." In this 1524 treatise, Luther wrote:

Here belongs also what St. Paul calls for in 1 Corinthians 14, namely, that in the Christian church all teachers must be judged. For this knowledge of the languages is needful above all else. The preacher or teacher can expound the Bible from beginning to end as he pleases, accurately or inaccurately, if there is no one there to judge whether he is doing it right or wrong. But in order to judge, one must have knowledge of the languages; it cannot be done in any other way. Therefore, although faith and the gospel may indeed be proclaimed by simple preachers without a knowledge of languages, such preaching is flat and tame, people finally become weary and bored with it, and it falls to the ground. But where the preacher is versed in the languages, there is freshness and vigor in his preaching, Scripture is treated in its entirety, and faith finds itself constantly renewed by a continual variety of words and illustrations. Hence, Psalm 129 likens such scriptural studies to a hunt, saying to the deer God opens the dense forests; and Psalm 1 likens them to a tree with a plentiful supply of water, whose leaves are always green.¹

It is hoped that this grammar will in some way help the reader come to a better understanding of the Greek New Testament. And that by using the tools of this grammar, the user will be drawn closer to the Lord.

The Method

The method used for learning the Greek of the New Testament is based on the internet video Bible Greek VPOD produced by the author and what the author received during his seminary work under the direction of Dr. Mal Couch. Dr. Couch's method was to "keep it simple." This is essential for any first year language course, not just Biblical Greek. One must become familiar with the essentials, the fundamentals, without too much time spent on unfamiliar grammar terms. It is by no means implied that the grammar terms are not important, nor is it the point of this program to omit technical words, but the mechanics of the language must be introduced without over-whelming the student. The basics must be introduced and understood then the technical details can be presented so the student can grow.

This program is based on the three fundamentals:

- Chapter reading of the grammar book
- Video instruction using the Biblegreekvpod lessons
- Then, back to the book and practice exercises

This method is simple, straight to the point, and proven. It is the purpose of this method and program that the student will gain a quick confidence working with the language and the love and value for it will grow.

Working the practice exercises is extremely valuable. There is no substitute for memorizing the vocabulary and translating the verses. The volume of words to memorize for each lesson is manageable, and the translation work limited to five or six verses. The selection is made in order for the student to become experienced in the subject of the chapter yet blessed since many of the verses have been chosen so that the student will be excited about the "meat" of the Scriptures. The verses were selected for the most part because of their doctrinal meat not just verses for practice sake. Use a Bible, in fact several versions of the Bible when translating so as to get acquainted with variations. Do not get hung up on the variations – just do the basic translations work and wait until intermediate Greek to understand the variations.

May your time be spent in the word, not around the word. May the riches and depths of His word bless you greatly.

Chapter One

The Story of Language

The Greek of the New Testament is very unique. It is, in a word – preserved. Preserved for all time. Frozen in time by a sovereign God who has preserved His Word in the Hebrew of the Old Testament and Greek of the New in order for all mankind to have a precise knowledge of what He has to say. In fact, God created Adam mature for fellowship with Him. Therefore, Adam was either created already knowing a language or shortly after his creation was “gifted” (supernaturally given) with a complex language to talk with the pre-incarnate Christ in the garden. Adam, Eve and God walked and talked in the garden.

It did not take long for man to disobey God’s Word and mankind fell. Through one man’s sin, death entered the world. Adam and Eve and all their descendents did, however, obey God’s command to populate the earth and soon the number of people on the earth increased greatly and sin multiplied. Evilness increased so much that God had to miraculously confuse the common language. Different language groups were born and mankind separated, by families, into unique ethnic groups.

Language is predominantly a spoken form of communication, but God preserves His Word in the written form. The spoken form is more versatile in that one can stress certain words by the inflection of the voice. In the written form, God gave man a way to preserve His Word in a permanent record, and commands mankind to preserve His sacred word faithfully and carefully.

Legal documents, trade records, history, ancient and modern, are all recorded in writing. All languages have certain fundamental elements with rules that regulate its form. This has to be or communication with each other would be impossible. All those years in school taking English for the purpose of teaching us how to read and write are for the purpose of teaching proper communication with all its rules. In America, the early Puritans wanted all children to learn how to read and write so they could understand God’s Word for themselves. So no one would be ignorant of our Savior’s gift – that God came in the flesh, died on the cross as the perfect sacrifice, was buried, and was raised from the dead. He lives, so we may have eternal life with Him.

The Story of Greek

The Greek language has developed through the ages from its early dialects about 1500 BC. The language is generally classified into five periods. The Formative period extends from the origin of the race to Homer (c. 900 BC)². It was during this period that the Ionic branch was established and in particular Attic Greek which dominated the dialects. This was the language of Athens.

The next great period of the Greek language is called the Classical period. This period extended from Homer to the great Alexandrine conquest (c. 333 BC). Attic was the dialect with a few carryovers from the Doria and Aeolic dialects, which are identified as irregular and exceptions. This type of Greek was not confined to Athens and spread as God moved in the world causing the Leopard of Daniel (Daniel 7) to conquer Medo-Persia, Egypt and all areas between. The Leopard of Daniel was identified as Alexander the Great. To accomplish this conquering of the world by Greece, Alexander recruited men for his army from all parts of Greece. This new group played a vital role in the emergence of a new type of Greek. The language of Hellenistic society was derived from blending the various dialects of the Greeks into a new common language dominated by Attic.

² These five periods are defined in Dana & Mantey, A Manual Grammar of the Greek New Testament (New York: MacMillan Publishing 1994)

The Story of Language

Greek	East Greek	Attic-Ionic Arcadian-Cyprian Aeolic: Lesbain, Thessalian, Boeotian	The Koine or Hellenistic Greek	Modern Greek ³
	West Greek	NW Greek: Locrian, Phocian, Elean Doric: Laconian, Argolic, Corinthian, Creatan, etc

This new dialect ushered in the next great period known as the Koine period. This period extended from 330 BC to AD 330. It is the period of the common or universal Greek. Koine means “common” and it was the language of the common people and the common means of communication in the Hellenistic age (c. 300 BC to AD 500).

The Hellenistic colonists made Greek permanent. Only after the passage of several centuries, the sixth century AD, did the Koine give way to the Greek of the Byzantine period (AD 330 to 1453). This period began with the division of the Roman Empire. The last period is the Modern period dating from 1453 to the present.

The movement of a universal language that the common man communicated by (or what is commonly called the commercial language), was a sovereign act of God which brought His word to the entire world. The New Testament was written in Greek and it was by this Greek - the unique Koine Greek, that the gospel of Christ spread like wildfire throughout the region.

The Greek of Palestine

Palestine was multilingual in the time of Christ. Aramaic was the language of the remnant of Israel, a remnant of the Babylonian captivity some 300 years prior to Christ. Jesus spoke Aramaic as is seen in the Gospel record, Hebrew was the language of the rabbinic circle, but it was Greek that was common to all in that region. Koine means “common, “everyday” and was the language of the Hellenistic world. Christ and His disciples spoke Greek, which most certainly was a practicality. Furthermore, there existed in Jerusalem a Greek speaking Jewish synagogue (Acts 6:9) which no doubt used the Greek Old Testament Septuagint in their service.

Chapter One

The Greek New Testament Manuscripts and Modern Tools

The Biblical writings of the New Testament that have come down to us today have been analyzed (textual criticism) to the point that the major versions are all very good⁴. The major manuscripts in use are the Textus Receptus (TR), the Majority Text (MT), and the Nestle-Aland (NA²⁷). With the computer resources that are commonly available today, each one of these texts may be used with complete lexical detail. There are two dominant resources that modern academia uses, Bible Works™, and Logos™. There are, however, a number of very good free resources that can be found on the Internet. The Online Bible, and e-Sword are just two of many. Each of these software programs provides the Greek text along with lexical detail. It is encouraged that anyone learning a language not use these resources. It is recommend that those learning the language do so the old fashion way – memorize the vocabulary and forms. This insures that the proper time is spent learning the language. Greek is not a hard language to learn, but it does require the effort needed to quickly identify the root word and its form.

Since Greek uses a lot of compound words, knowing the basic vocabulary is essential, and the compounds can be “broken down” by literally saying the compounds to get to the new word. This is fun as can be seen by using the word knowledge, ‘gnosis’ is knowledge, but ‘epi-gnosis’ is over-knowledge, or upon-knowledge, which is a complete or precise knowledge. And ‘a-gnosis’ is the compound of the negative particle and the Greek word for knowledge, which is combined to give no-knowledge or the English equivalent, ignorance.

⁴ For a good description of the history of the Greek manuscripts see Bruce Metzger, The Text of the New Testament (Oxford University Press, 1992), or Philip Comfort, Early Manuscripts & Modern Translations of the New Testament (Grand Rapids: Baker Books, 1990).

The Greek Alphabet

The New Testament Greek has twenty-four letters. There exists in the Greek both upper and lower case letters as shown in the following table.

Capital Letters	Small Letters	Name	Transliteration ⁵	Pronunciation
A	α	alpha	a	f ather, c at
B	β	beta	b	b all
Γ	γ	gamma	g	g ift
Δ	δ	delta	d	d ebt
E	ε	epsilon	e	s et
Z	ζ	zeta	z or dz	Z ion
H	η	eta	e	ob e y, a te
Θ	θ	theta	th	th eme
I	ι	iota	i	pi t, mach i ne
K	κ	kappa	k	k it
Λ	λ	lambda	l	l ight
M	μ	mu	m	m an
N	ν	nu	n	n o
Ξ	ξ	xi	x	a x
O	ο	omicron	o	p ot
Π	π	pi	p	p ay
P	ρ	rho	r	r ise
Σ	σ	sigma	s	s ea s
	ς	sigma (final form)	s	sea s
T	τ	tau	t	t o
Υ	υ	upsilon	u	t ube
Φ	φ	phi	ph	ph one
X	χ	chi	ch	Ch rist
Ψ	ψ	psi	ps	ta ps
Ω	ω	omega	o	t one

⁵ Transliteration is the process of assigning an English equivalent to the Greek letter.

The Greek Alphabet

Notice the five groupings. These are grouped in four or five letters per group in order to help in the memorization process. It is far easier to memorize a group of four or five letters, then, once that group is memorized, move on to the next group. Memorize the form of the small letters only, saying the name and writing down the letter many times. Do this until the whole alphabet can be written without hesitation.

The Vowels

There are seven Greek vowels similar to English. They are α, ε, η, ι, ο, υ, and ω. The sounds adopted as equivalent to the vowels in Greek are given for the sake of consistency in pronunciation.

The Diphthong

In Greek there are seven diphthongs. A diphthong is two sounds that unite in a syllable forming a single sound.

Diphthong	Transliteration	Pronunciation
αι	ai	a isle
αυ	au	kra u t
ει	ei	he i ght
ευ	eu	fe u d
οι	oi	o il
ου	ou	gr o up
υι	ui	sui t
ηυ	approximately the same as ευ

Syllables

The word syllable comes to the English from the Greek syllabē meaning, “that which holds together,” and applies to how a word is pronounced. A word or part of a word pronounced with a single, uninterrupted sound of the voice. Every Greek word has as many syllables as it has separate vowels or diphthongs. In general, words are broken up into syllables using the following rules:

- Between vowel and consonant
- Usually when two consonants are placed next to each other

This is seen in the following words.

θε-λω	the-lo
νο-μος	no-mos
κοσ-μος	kos-mos
α-δελ-φος	a-del-phos
αν-θρω-πος	an-thrō-pos
ε-χω	e-chō

Chapter Two

Pronunciation

Note the following pronunciation rules:

1. Rules for gamma. When γ is followed by a γ , κ , or χ , it is pronounced like the English “n” (e.g. $\acute{\alpha}\gamma\gamma\epsilon\lambda\omicron\varsigma$ is pronounced an-ge-los).
2. Rules for zeta. When zeta (ζ) begins a word, it is pronounced as “z;” as in zebra. Otherwise, it is pronounced as “dz” as in sudds.
3. Rules for vowels:
 - Epsilon (ϵ) and Omicron (\omicron) are always short.
 - Eta (η) and Omega (ω) are always long.
 - Upsilon (υ) may be either long or short.
 - Alpha (α) has two sounds: cǎt and fǎther.
 - Iota (ι) has two sounds: pĭt and machine.

Rules for diphthongs:

- In general all diphthongs are long.
- When an iota follows a long vowel, the iota is written under a vowel and is called “iota-subscript.” For this case the iota subscript does not affect the pronunciation.

Breathing Marks

Greek uses two breathing marks for the purpose of pronunciation of words starting with a vowel, a diphthong, or an initial rho (ρ). There is the smooth mark that looks like the single right quotation mark (\prime) and placed over the beginning letter or in the case of a diphthong over the second vowel letter but does not affect the pronunciation of the word. The rough breathing mark that looks like the single left quotation mark ($\grave{\prime}$) and placed upon the first letter changes the pronunciation of the vowel to an “h.” For example, $\alpha\mu\alpha\rho\tau\acute{\iota}\alpha$ is pronounced hä-mar-tee-ä.

Accent Marks

There are three accent marks that are used in the Greek to indicate rising or falling of the voice. The acute ($\acute{\prime}$) indicates the rising voice; the grave ($\grave{\prime}$) indicates falling voice; and the circumflex (\circ) indicates both rising and falling. The emphasis on pitch is not reproduced today, but the accent marks are still present. Thus, in pronunciation, we make no distinction between the accents.

Punctuation Marks

Greek has four punctuation marks. Like English, Greek uses the comma ($,$) and the period ($.$). The English colon and semi-colon are represented by ($:$) and the question mark is represented by ($;$).

The Greek Alphabet

A final word

The phonological or sound system of the Attic dialect was too complex and artificial for the ears of the Hellenistic world. By the first century AD some vowels and diphthongs were already starting to be pronounced alike, as in Modern Greek, and consequently were confused. The confusion of the vowels and diphthongs of the ē sound is called itacism. As a means of standardization, the sound of the vowels adopted here are given for the sake of consistency. The system of pronunciation recommended throughout this book stresses the use of the International Phonetic Association (IPA). Recognized symbols of the IPA system provide exact pronunciation applied to any language or culture.

Practice

- A. Memorize the alphabet (It is helpful to memorize the alphabet in groups of 5).
- B. Memorize the diphthongs.

The Greek Verb

In Greek as in English, the verb is the focal point of action. The verb is usually the key word in the sentence and serves as the most important part of interpretation. The verb is a word that describes action or state of being. As in most languages, the Greek verb has tense, voice, mood, person, and number. The verb must agree with its subject in person and number. For example, if the subject is third person, the verb must be third person.

Tense in English is restricted to the time when the action of the verb takes place. That is, tense is either past (“I wrote”), present (“I am writing”), or future (“I will write”). In Greek, however, tense provides two elements – time of action, and kind of action (also called aspect). With time, the meaning may be either past, present, or future. When kind of action is indicated, it expresses progressive, undefined, or perfected action.

Progressive action implies a continuation of action. Undefined action means that the action is thought of as a simple event and says nothing about whether or not it is a process. Perfected action describes the action as having been completed with the result of the action continuing.

No element of the Greek language is of more importance to the student of the New Testament than the matter of tense. A variation in meaning exhibited by the use of a particular tense will often dissolve what appears to be an embarrassing difficulty, or reveal a gleam of truth which will thrill the heart with delight and inspiration....The development of tense has reached its highest in Greek, and presents its greatest wealth of meaning. ‘Among all known ancient languages none distinguishes the manifold temporal (and modal) relations of the verb so accurately as the Greek'.⁶

Present Active Indicative Verbs

Voice is that quality of the verb that indicates the relationship of the subject to the action. If the subject does the action, then the verb is in the active voice. In the example "John hit the ball." Hit is in the active voice because the subject, John, did the action. If the subject receives the action, the verb is in the passive voice. In the example, "John was hit by the ball." The subject John "was hit" by the ball making the action passive voice. If the action is returning to the subject, then the voice is middle. In the example "John hit himself," the subject, John, participated in the action, either directly or indirectly.

Mood provides the thought with the aspect of reality. For example, "the child runs," relates the idea that the child is running in the present. To say, "if the child runs," relates the idea of the possibility of the child running in the present. Mood represents the attitude of mind on the part of the speaker." There are two moods in Greek, (1) the real mood – called the indicative; and (2) the potential mood – which includes (a) the subjunctive (may, might), (b) the optative (may –expressing more hesitation than the subjunctive), and (c) imperative (command).

Person provides the thought with whether the subject is speaking (first person – I, we), is being spoken to (second person – you), or is being spoken about (third person – he, she, it, they).

Finally, the verb will indicate the number – whether the subject is singular or plural. The verb agrees with its subject in person and number.

Present Active Indicative

The first verb system that most students encounter is the present active indicative. The verb λύω is identified by its stem (λυ-) followed by a personal pronoun ending.

Singular		Plural
1 st λύ-ω	I am loosing, I loose	1 st λύ-ο-μεν	we are loosing, we loose
2 nd λύ-εις	you are loosing, you loose	2 nd λύ-ε-τε	you are loosing, you loose
3 rd λύ-ει	he/she/it is loosing	3 rd λύ-ουσι(ν)	they are loosing, they loose

The verb stem is the distinguishing factor of the verb. The stem remains unchanged as the personal pronoun endings change according to person and number, and as the front of the stem is augmented with addition of tense prefixes.

⁶ H.E. Dana & Julius R. Mantey, A Manual Grammar of the Greek New Testament (The Macmillan Co.:Toronto, 1994), pp. 176,177

Chapter Three

Notice the second person singular and plural are distinguished in the Greek but in the English they have the same form (“you are loosing”). Also notice the movable nu (ν). In the ancient texts sometimes a nu (ν) appears in the third plural form of the present active indicative after the iota (ι). In addition, it appears at the end of other words ending in σι, or ε, especially when followed by another word beginning with a vowel. This is noted so that you may be aware that at times a nu (ν) is added and other times not.

Parsing Verbs

To parse a verb is to identify its parts. One identifies tense, voice, mood, person and number. For example to parse the verb λύεις, one says it is a Present Active Indicative, 2 person, singular of λύω (note: the first person singular is identified as the root).

The Present Active Indicative

The present tense describes the time of action or kind of action. For the present tense the fundamental significance is the idea of progress. It represents linear (on-going) action, or this is also referred to as durative action. The active voice means the subject is producing the action. The indicative mood means that the action is real or that there is the reality of the action. The indicative is the mood of certainty. “It represents the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality. This is the attitude of mind expressed, whether the assumed reality is an objective fact or not.”⁷

The Present Active Infinitive

The present active infinitive possesses the idea of a verbal noun having tense and voice. The infinitive can function as relating (a) to time, using “while,” or “as;” (b) reason, using “because;” (c) purpose, using “to,” “in order to,” “so that;” (d) result, using “that,” “so as to,” “as a result;” and (e) means, using “by means.”

Present Active Infinitive of λύω is λύ-ειν to loose

Practice

- A. Memorize the vocabulary.
- B. Parse the verbs in the following format: tense, voice, mood, person, number, root, translation (e.g., ἀκούει – P.A.I.3Sg. from ἀκούω – he/she/it is hearing).
- 1. βλέπει 2. γινώσκω 3. λέγουσιν 4. φέρετε 5. γινώσκεις 6. πέμπει 7. λέγεις
- 8. φέρουσιν 9. ἀκούω 10. διδάσκεις

The Greek Noun

Greek nouns, as English nouns, are words used to name a person, place, or thing. The Greek noun contains case, gender, and number. To complicate matters there are three declensions or grouping of Greek nouns. A declension is a grouping of nouns according to their endings but has no effect on their translation.

Case has to do with the function of the noun as it relates to the verb or to other parts of the sentence. Greek has eight distinctive cases, but of these eight cases, one only has to remember four (or five forms when the vocative form is different from the nominative).

1. Nominative. The nominative is the case of designation. It is the “naming” case. The nominative serves as the subject of the sentence or clause. It is translated as υιός “a son,” or when used with the article ó υιός “the son.”
2. Genitive. The genitive is the case of description. The genitive specifies or qualifies the word it modifies. It expresses possession and is translated as υιού “of a son,” or when used with the article του υιού “of the son.”
3. Ablative. The ablative is the case of separation or origin. It uses the same form as the genitive and is translated υιού “from a son,” or when used with the article του υιού “from the son.”
4. Dative. The dative is the case of reception. It is translated as υιόω “to a son,” or when used with the article τω υιόω “to the son.”
5. Locative. The locative is the case of location or position. It uses the same form as the dative and is translated as υιόω “in a son,” or when used with the article τω υιόω “in the son.”

Second Declension Nouns

6. Instrumental. The instrumental is the case of means or instrument. It uses the same form as the dative and is translated as υἰόω “with or by a son,” or when used with the article τῷ υἰόω “with or by the son.”
7. Accusative. The accusative is the case of limitation. The action extends to and is limited to the object. Its main usage is with the direct object of the phrase. It is translated as υἰόν “son,” or when used with the article τὸν υἰόν “the son.”
8. Vocative. The vocative is the case of address. In the plural the case always has the same form as the nominative, but in the singular the forms are often different. It is translated as υἰέ “Son,…”

The Second Declension Noun

Second declension nouns are primarily masculine and neuter.

Second Declension endings - Masculine
	Singular	Plural	Translation
Nominative	-ος	-οι	“a, the”
Genitive	-ου	-ων	“of”
Ablative	-ου	-ων	“from”
Dative	-ω	-οις	“to, for”
Locative	-ω	-οις	“in”
Instrumental	-ω	-οις	“with, by”
Accusative	-ον	-ους	“a, the”
Vocative	-ε	-οι	“O”

Second Declension endings - Neuter
	Singular	Plural	Translation
Nominative	-ον	-α	“a, the”
Genitive	-ου	-ων	“of”
Ablative	-ου	-ων	“from”
Dative	-ω	-οις	“to”
Locative	-ω	-οις	“in”
Instrumental	-ω	-οις	“with, by”
Accusative	-ον	-α	“a, the”
Vocative	-ον	-α	“O”

The Article

A noun may, or may not, possess a definite article. In the Greek there is no indefinite article corresponding to the English “a” or “an.” To express the indefinite idea in Greek, the article is omitted. So, ὁ υἰός is translated “the son,” while, υἰός is simply “son” or “a son.”

Chapter Four

Second Declension Article - Masculine

	Singular	Plural
Nominative	ὁ	οἱ
Genitive	τοῦ	τῶν
Ablative	τοῦ	τῶν
Dative	τῷ	τοῖς
Locative	τῷ	τοῖς
Instrumental	τῷ	τοῖς
Accusative	τόν	τούς

Second Declension Article - Neuter

	Singular	Plural
Nominative	τό	τά
Genitive	του	των
Ablative	του	των
Dative	τῷ	τοῖς
Locative	τῷ	τοῖς
Instrumental	τῷ	τοῖς
Accusative	τό	τά

Examples:

Masculine noun λόγος

	Singular		Plural
N	λόγος	a word	NV	λόγοι words
GA	λόγου	of/from a word	GA	λόγων of/from words
DLI	λόγῳ	to/in/by a word	DLI	λόγοις to/in/by words
Ac	λόγον	a word	Ac	λόγους words
V	λόγε	O word

Neuter noun ἱερόν

	Singular		Plural
NV	ἱερόν	a temple	NV	ἱερά temples
GA	ἱεροῦ	of/from a temple	GA	ἱερῶν of/from temples
DLI	ἱερῷ	to/in/by a temple	DLI	ἱεροῖς to/in/by temples
Ac	ἱερόν	a temple	Ac	ἱερά temples

The Adjective

Adjectives modify a noun or stand alone. An adjective will have gender, number and case and will agree with the noun it is modifying. The adjective may contain a definite article or stand alone.

Examples:

ὁ ἀγαθος λογος the good word
ὁ ἀγαθος the good man

Practice

- A. Memorize the vocabulary and the second declension masculine articles.
- B. Decline the following nouns using the format: case, gender, number, translation (e.g., λόγου – g/a.m.sg. – of/from a word).
1. λόγῳ 2. λόγοις 3. ἱερὸν 4. ἱερά 5. λόγους 6. λόγοι
- C. Decline the following nouns using the format: case, gender, number, translation (e.g., τοῦ λόγου – g/a.m.sg., with def. art. – of/from the word).
1. τῷ λόγῳ 2. τοῖς λόγοις 3. τὸ ἱερὸν 4. τὰ ἱερά 5. τοὺς λόγους 6. οἱ λόγοι
- D. Translate the following sentences.
1. ὁ δούλος φέρει δῶρον.
2. ὁ ἀπόστολος λέγει λόγον.
3. λαμβάνω δῶρα καρπῶν καὶ ἄρτου.
4. γράφομεν τοῖς ἀδελφοῖς.

First Declension Nouns

Vocabulary

αγάπη, η	love	ειρήνη, η	peace
αλήθεια, η	truth	εκκλησία, η	church
αμαρτία, η	sin	εντολή, η	commandment
βασιλεία, η	kingdom	εξουσία, η	authority, power
γλώσσα, η	tongue	ημέρα, η	day
γραφή, η	writing, Scripture	μαθητής, ο	disciple
διδασχί, η	teaching	παραβολή, η	parable
δόξα, η	glory	προφήτης, ο	prophet

First Declension Nouns

The feminine noun dominates the first declension form, though some first declension nouns are masculine. This may be confusing at first, but be aware of the following two rules: (1) All first declension nouns ending in η or α in the nominative singular are feminine; and (2) first declension nouns whose nominative ends in ης or ας are masculine.

First Declension Article

	Singular	Plural
Nominative	η	αί
Genitive	της	των
Ablative	της	των
Dative	τη	τοις
Locative	τη	τοις
Instrumental	τη	τοις
Accusative	τήν	τάς

Feminine Forms

There are three feminine forms. The stem ending determines which form is used and all plural forms are the same.

1. When the stem ends in ε, ι, or ρ, the predominant vowel is a long α and the endings are as follows:

First Declension Nouns

First Declension for ε, ι, or ρ, stem

	Singular	Plural	Translation
Nominative	βασιλεία	βασιλειαί	“a, the kingdom”
Genitive	βασιλείας	βασιλειῶν	“of a kingdom”
Ablative	βασιλείας	βασιλειῶν	“from a kingdom”
Dative	βασιλείᾳ	βασιλείαις	“to a kingdom”
Locative	βασιλείᾳ	βασιλείαις	“in a kingdom”
Instrumental	βασιλείᾳ	βασιλείαις	“with, by a kingdom”
Accusative	βασιλείαν	βασιλείας	“a, the a kingdom”
Vocative	βασιλεία	βασιλειαί	“O kingdom”

2. When the stem ends in ς, λλ, ζ, ξ, or ψ, the endings are as follows:

First Declension for ς, λλ, ζ, ξ, or ψ, stem

	Singular	Plural	Translation
Nominative	γλῶσσα	γλῶσσαι	“a, the tongue”
Genitive	γλῶσσης	γλῶσσων	“of a tongue”
Ablative	γλῶσσης	γλῶσσων	“from a tongue”
Dative	γλῶσση	γλῶσσαις	“to a tongue”
Locative	γλῶσση	γλῶσσαις	“in a tongue”
Instrumental	γλῶσση	γλῶσσαις	“with, by a tongue”
Accusative	γλῶσσαν	γλῶσσας	“a, the tongue”
Vocative	γλῶσσα	γλῶσσαι	“O tongue”

3. When the stem ends in any other letter the endings are as follows:

First Declension stem

	Singular	Plural	Translation
Nominative	γραφή	γραφαί	“a, the writing”
Genitive	γραφης	γραφων	“of a writing”
Ablative	γραφης	γραφων	“from a writing”
Dative	γραφῃ	γραφαις	“to a writing”
Locative	γραφῃ	γραφαις	“in a writing”
Instrumental	γραφῃ	γραφαις	“with, by a writing”
Accusative	γραφὴν	γραφάς	“a, the writing”
Vocative	γραφή	γραφαί	“O writing”

Masculine Forms

There is only one first declension masculine form. These nouns end in ης and are declined as follows:

First Declension stem - Masculine
	Singular	Plural	Translation
Nominative	προφήτης	προφηται	“a, the prophet”
Genitive	προφήτου	προφητων	“of a prophet”
Ablative	προφήτου	προφητων	“from a prophet”
Dative	προφήτη	προφηταις	“to a prophet”
Locative	προφήτη	προφηταις	“in a prophet”
Instrumental	προφήτη	προφηταις	“with, by a prophet”
Accusative	προφήτην	προφήτας	“a, the prophet”
Vocative	προφητα	προφηται	“prophet”

Practice

- A. Memorize the vocabulary and the first declension feminine article.
B. Decline the following nouns using the following format: case, gender, number, translation (e.g., λόγου – g/a.m.sg. – of/from a word).

1. αγάπη 2. γλώσσης 3. βασιλείας 4. γραφαί 5. προφήτη 6. προφητων

- C. Decline the following nouns using the format: case, gender, number, translation (e.g., του λόγου – g/a.m.sg., with def. art. – of/from the word).

1. η αγάπη 2. της γλώσσης 3. τας βασιλείας 4. αι γραφαί

- D. Translate the following sentences.

1. η αγαπη αληθης.
2. ακουει ο λογος αληθης.
3. λεγει της δοξης του κυριου.
4. ο κυριος λεγει της βασιλείας
5. ακουει η παραβολή της βασιλείας.

Present Passive and Middle Indicative Verbs

Vocabulary

αποκρίνομαι (D) ⁸	I answer	εξέρχομαι (D)	I go out of αρχω	I rule	προσέρχομαι (D)	I come to, go to βάλλω	I throw	συνέρχομαι (D)	I come with γίνομαι (D)	I become	καρδία, η	heart
δέχομαι (D)	I receive	κηρύσσω	I proclaim, preach
ερημος	desert	ουρανός, ο	heaven
έρχομαι (D)	I come, go	πορεύομαι (D)	I go
απέρχομαι (D)	I go away	σώζω	I save
διέρχομαι (D)	I go through	φωνή, η	voice
εισέρχομαι (D)	I go into, enter

The Present Passive Indicative

The Greek verb has three voices, active, passive and middle. The passive voice means the subject is being acted upon by another agent. Or, to put it another way, the subject is acted upon or receives the action expressed by the verb⁹. In the example, “For all who are being led by the Spirit of God, these are sons of God.” (Rom. 8:14), αγονται (lit. they are being led) is the verb and is a present passive indicative 3rd person plural.

The Present Middle Indicative

The middle voice means the subject is participating in the action, either directly or indirectly. There are four uses for the middle.

1. Direct Middle.

- a. Reflexive use. In the reflexive use, the result of the action is attributed to the agent. For example:

“The man is teaching himself” (ὁ ἄνθρωπος διδάσκεται)

⁸ Verbs marked with a (D) are deponent verbs.

⁹ Daniel Wallace, Greek Grammar Beyond the Basics (Grand Rapids: Zondervan, 1996), p. 431

Present Passive & Middle Indicative

- b. Reciprocal use. In the reciprocal use, the subject engages in an interchange of action, usually possessing a plural subject. For example,

“The men are teaching one another” (οἱ ἄνθρωποι διδάσκονται)

2. Indirect Middle.

- a. The subject is acting with reference to itself or in behalf of itself. For example:

“She is taking gifts for herself” (λαμβάνεται δῶα)

3. Intensive Middle.

- a. The agent is producing the action rather than participating in it. For example:

“He himself is teaching the truth” (διδάσκεται τὴν ἀληθειαν)

That is, he alone is doing the teaching.

4. Defective Middle. The defective or deponent simply means that the verb is translated as an active. These verbs appear in the middle or passive forms but are active in function. The word deponent comes from the Latin deponere meaning, “to lay down,” “put down,” “lay aside.”¹⁰ These verbs are easy to identify because their dictionary form will be listed with the first middle ending (-ομαι) and most dictionaries will list them as deponent.

Present Passive and Middle Indicative Form

The present passive (I am being loosed) and middle verb (I am loosing myself) forms are identical and context must be used to determine usage. The verb λύω is identified by its stem (λυ-) followed by a middle/passive personal pronoun ending.

Singular		Plural
Passive:
1 st λύ-ο-μαι	I am being loosed	1 st λύ-ο-με-θα	we are being loosed
2 nd λύ-η	you are being loosed	2 nd λύ-εσ-θε	you are being loosed
3 rd λύ-ε-ται	he/she/it is being loosed	3 rd λύ-ον-ται	they are being loosed
Middle:
1 st λύ-ο-μαι	I am loosing myself	1 st λύ-ο-με-θα	we are loosing ourselves
2 nd λύ-η	you are loosing yourself	2 nd λύ-εσ-θε	you are loosing yourselves
3 rd λύ-ε-ται	he/she/it is loosing self	3 rd λύ-ον-ται	they are loosing themselves

The Greek Sentence

A complete sentence must have a subject and a predicate. In a sense, Greek is easier than English in that the various noun forms help to identify the parts of speech. Greek is, however, more versatile because the sentence does not necessarily depend upon the word order. The easiest way to identify the English word order is to organize the words in proper order.

To translate Greek into English perform the following steps:

1. Identify the nominative case. This is the subject.
2. Identify the verb.
3. Identify the accusative. This is the direct object.
4. Arrange the sentence as: subject + verb + object (“Joe hit the ball”).

Note the following:

- If the sentence does not have a nominative noun, then the subject is most likely from the verb.
- The object may be omitted, so the structure may be simply subject + predicate (nominative + verb).

Examples:

1. Simple sentence possessing a subject and verb:
 - ἔδακρυσεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς literally, “wept the Jesus” = Jesus wept.
2. Simple sentence possessing a subject + verb + object:
 - ὁ κόσμος οὐ γινώσκει ἡμᾶς “the world does not know us.”
3. Simple sentence possessing a verb + object (the verb provides the subject):
 - ἔγνων αὐτόν “he knew him.”

Additional Issues

In addition to the simple rules above, keep in mind the following.

1. You will come upon the case where the nominative will serve as the object. For example John 1:1 has, θεὸς ἦν ὁ λόγος The subject is the word with the definite article so the translation is, “The word was God.”
2. While the accusative identifies the direct object, the dative identifies the indirect object, but may also be the direct object. An example of a sentence possessing both a direct and indirect object is Matt. 7:6, μὴ δώτε το ἅγιον τοῖς κυσὶν “do not give the holy things to the dogs.” Another example is John 1:5, τὸ φῶς ἐν τῇ σκοτίᾳ φαίνει literally is, the light in the darkness shines = “the light shines in the darkness.” Verbs that take dative indirect objects are generally those that move the direct object from one place to another. Examples are, “give,” “repay,” “send,” “bring,” “speak,” & etc.

Translation guidelines

During your translation exercises do the following:

1. Find the main verb

Present Passive & Middle Indicative

2. Find the subject. The subject will be the nominative noun. If there is no nominative noun, the subject comes from the verb. If there are two nominatives, the the subject will be the nominative with the article.
3. Find the direct object. Normally, the direct object will be the accusative noun, but if there are two nominatives, then the nominative without the article is the direct object.
4. Organize the translation into English order: Subject + Verb + Object.
5. Choose the definition of the word in its context.

Practice

- A. Memorize the vocabulary.
- B. Memorize the present passive/middle indicative form.
- C. Parse and translate the verbs below in the following format: tense, voice, mood, person, number, root, translation (e.g., ἀκούει – P.A.I.3Sg. from ἀκούω – he/she/it is hearing).
 1. βάλλομαι
 2. κηρύσσομεθα
 3. λέγεται
 4. σωζονται
 5. γινώσκεσθε
- D. Translate the following sentences.
 1. ὁ δούλος φέρεται το δῶρον.
 2. οἱ ἀνθρώποι λέγονται.
 3. ἡ φωνὴ ἐξέρχεται οὐρανοῦ
 4. ἐρχομαι οὐρανῶ
 5. εἰσερχομαι τὴν ἐρημὴν

Prepositions

Vocabulary

One case prepositions:

ανά	acc.	up, among, between
αντί	gen.	opposite, instead of
από	abl.	from, away from εις	acc.	into, to, in
εκ	abl.	out of (εξ when used before a vowel)
πρό	abl.	before
σύν	inst.	with, together with

Two case prepositions:

διά	gen.	through
	acc.	because of
εν	loc.	in, at, on
	inst.	by means of
κατά	gen.	down, upon, against
	acc.	along, according to
μετά	gen.	with
	acc.	after
περί	gen.	about, concerning
	acc.	around, about
υπερ	gen.	in behalf of, for the sake of
	acc.	over, above, beyond
υπό	abl.	by (agency)
	acc.	under

Three case prepositions:

επί	gen.	on, upon, over
	loc.	on, in, above
	acc.	over, across
παρά	abl.	from
	loc.	with, beside
	acc.	beside, beyond, along
πρός	gen.	for, for the sake of
	loc.	at, on, near
	acc.	toward, with, at

Purpose of the Preposition

Prepositions show direction and location of action. Prepositions are used to bring out more clearly the idea of case. As can be seen in the basic function of the noun's form, some prepositions are “built into” the case, but prepositions express the relation of the verb to the noun. Prepositions became so widely used that some of the cases have disappeared in Modern Greek.¹¹ To see how this works, consider the example: “and Jesus went out from the temple,” which is written in Matthew 24:1 as, ‘Καί ἐξελθὼν ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἀπὸ τοῦ ἱεροῦ,’ but can be written without the preposition ἀπὸ as, ‘Καί ἐξελθὼν ὁ Ἰησοῦς τοῦ ἱεροῦ.’

Chapter Seven

Prepositions in Compound Words

Prepositions are popular in compound words, particularly verbs as has already been seen with the deponent verbs. Namely, using the basic word ἐρχομαι, “I come, go,” and adding a preposition makes the compound ἀπέρχομαι, which means, “I go away.” Others, διέρχομαι, “I go through;” εἰσέρχομαι “I go into, enter;” ἐξέρχομαι, “I go out of;” προσέρχομαι, “I come to, go to;” or συνέρχομαι “I come with.”

Elision in Prepositions

The spelling of a preposition changes according to how the word before it is breathed. An apostrophe is added to show the loss of the vowel. This process is called elision and the changes are given below.

Preposition	Before Smooth Breathing	Before Rough Breathing
ἀντί		ανθ’
ἀπό	απ’	αφ’
διά	δι’	δι’
κατά	κατ’	καθ’
μετά	μετ’	μεθ’
υπό	υπ’	υφ’
παρά	παρ’	παρ’
ἐπί	ἐπ’	εφ’

Practice

A. Memorize the vocabulary.

B. Translate the following:

1. τη γὰρ χάριτί ἐστε (you are) σεσωσμένοι (being saved) διὰ πίστεως (Eph. 2:8).
2. καὶ Ἕλληνας (Greek) πάντας (all) ὑφ’ ἁμαρτίαν (sin) εἶναι (are). (Rom. 3:9).
3. κατὰ πνεῦμα ἀγιωσύνης (holiness) (Rom. 1:4).
4. ὅτι (that) δὲ ἐν νόμῳ οὐδεὶς (no one) δικαιούται (being justified) (Gal. 3:11).
5. ἣν (which) ἔχεις πρὸς τὸν κύριον Ἰησοῦν (Philemon 1:5).

Personal Pronouns

Personal pronouns are declined like nouns and consist of case, gender, and number. Like English, personal pronouns are used to replace nouns, avoiding the monotony of the repeated use of the noun. The word pronoun comes from the Latin pro meaning “before, for,” and nomen meaning “a name.”

Usage

Pronouns function with the case in the same way nouns do. For example, when I do something, the pronoun is said to be in the nominative case. When something is done to me, the pronoun is in the accusative case. Pronouns such as my, her, and their are in the genitive case.

The pronoun is the subject of the sentence	Nominative	He/she sees the house
The pronoun is the object of the sentence	Accusative	John sees her/him
The pronoun possesses something	Genitive	That is my/her/their house

Examples:

- λέγει αυτη Ἰησους - Jesus said to her (John 20:16)
- εγώ ειμι η οδος και η αληθεια και η ζωή - I am the way and the truth and the life (John 14:1)
- τον λόγον μου – the word of me (“my word” - possessive) (John 5:19)

The use of αυτός in the nominative

The third person pronoun αυτός is seldom used in the nominative as a personal pronoun. Instead it may be found used in the following ways:

Personal Pronouns

Attributive. In the attributive position it is translated as “same,” whether in the nominative or another case. For example, αὐτος δε οἱ Ἰωάννης – And the same John (Mat. 3:4).

Predicate. In the predicate position, translate in the intensive sense as “self.” For example, οὐτι ἐγὼ εἰμι αὐτος “that it is I myself” (Luke 24:39).

Present Indicative of εἰμί

Singular		Plural
εἰμί	I am	εσμέν	we are
εἶ	you are	εστέ	you are
ἐστί(ν)	he/she/it is	εἰσί(ν)	they are

Present Infinitive of εἰμί

εἶναι	to be
-------	-------

Notice that the verb εἰμι does not have voice associated with it. This is because it shows “state of being,” not action! Greek differs from English in that the verb “to be” does not have to be included in a sentence if it is understood from the context. When omitted, the subject will not always be first in the sentence. For example, ἀγάπη ὁ θεός is translated “God is love.” The italicized “is” is supplied because this verb is understood by context and the reader understands that God is the subject since θεός has an article.¹²

Practice

- Memorize the vocabulary.
- Parse and translate the verbs below in the following format: tense, mood, person, number, root, translation (e.g., εἰμί – P.I.1Sg. from εἰμί – I am).
 - εσμέν
 - ἐστίν
 - εστέ
 - εἰσί
- Translate the following sentences.
 - ἐγὼ εἰμι ὁ ἄρτος (the bread) ὁ ζῶν (the living one) (John 6:51).
 - ἐγὼ οὐκ (not) εἰμι ἐκ τοῦ κόσμου τούτου (this) (John 8:23).
 - πρὶν (before) Ἀβραάμ (Abraham) γενέσθαι (was) ἐγὼ εἰμί (John 8:58).
 - ἐγὼ εἰμι τὸ φῶς (light) τοῦ κόσμου (John 8:12).
 - ἐγὼ ἐν τῷ πατρὶ (father) μου καὶ ὑμεῖς ἐν ἐμοὶ καὶ ἐγὼ (and I) ἐν ὑμῖν (John 14:20).

Demonstrative Pronouns

A demonstrative pronoun is a pronoun that serves to “point out” and has the idea of showing with clearness and certainty. It comes from the Latin demonstrare meaning “to point out,” “to show” (a compound from de “out from,” and monstrare “to show”).

There are two demonstrative pronouns in the Greek: (1) the near demonstrative “this” ουτος; and (2) the far or remote demonstrative “that” εκεινος. Demonstratives are declined like nouns and possess gender, case and number.

ουτος - this

Singular

	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N	ουτος	αυτη	τουτο
GA	τουτου	ταυτης	τουτου
DLI	τουτω	ταυτη	τουτω

Relative Pronouns

A relative pronoun is a word that introduces a subordinate clause and refers to an antecedent and is represented by the words “who,” “which,” and “that.” The word relative comes from the Latin referre “to refer.” The relative pronoun contains gender, number and case and agrees with its antecedent in gender, but its function determines the case.

ος – who, which , that

Singular

	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N	ος	η	ο who/which/that
GA	ου	ης	ου of whom/which
DLI	ω	η	ω to whom/which

N	οι	αι	α who/which/that
GA	ων	ων	ων of whom/which
DLI	οις	αις	οις to whom/which
Ac	ους	ας	α whom/which/that

Interrogative Pronouns

An interrogative pronoun is a word that asks a question. The word interrogative comes from the Latin interrogare meaning “to question,” “ask,” “interrogate.” So the interrogative pronoun τίς means “who” or “what.”

Pronouns

τίς - who, what

The Aorist Tense

The Greek aorist is the most used tense in the New Testament and the most peculiar to the Greek idiom. The word aorist comes from the Greek αοριστος meaning “undefined,” “undetermined.” Grammarians call the action punctular meaning that the aorist treats the action as a point. That is, the fundamental idea of the aorist is to denote action simply as occurring, without reference to its progress.¹³ It does not distinguish the action as complete or incomplete. It simply states that the action took place in the past without regard to its duration.

The usual way of translating the aorist is with the simple past tense in English. There are three primary types of past action associated with the aorist:

1. Constative. Regards the action in its entirety and is graphically represented as < ' >.

ηρωτησαν αυτον, Τι ουν; Συ Ἠλιας ει (John 1:21)

They asked him, “What then? Are you Elijah?”

2. Ingressive. The action is viewed from the standpoint of its initiation and is graphically represented as >-----.

ηκολουθησαν αυτω δυο τυφλοι (Matt. 9:27)

two blind men began to follow him

3. Culminative. The action is viewed in its results and is graphically represented as ----<'

ενικησεν ο λεων ο εκ της φυλης Ἰουδα (Rev. 5:5)

the Lion from the tribe of Judah has overcome

First Aorist Active Indicative Form

The First Aorist Indicative is distinguished by the addition of the sigma. The verb λύω is identified by the augment (ε-), followed by the stem (-λυ-), followed by the tense sign (-σα-), then adding the personal pronoun ending.

Singular		Plural
1 st	ε-λυ-σα I loosed	1 st	ε-λύ-σα-μεν we loosed
2 nd	ε-λυ-σας you loosed	2 nd	ε-λύ-σα-τε you loosed
3 rd	ε-λυ-σε(ν) he/she/it loosed	3 rd	ε-λύ-σαν they loosed

Example:

οτι ους προεγνω (before know) και προωρισεν (before decide) συμμορφους της εικονος του υιου αυτου (Rom 8:29a)

For whom He foreknew and He predestined [to be] conformed men of the image of the Son of Him.

First Aorist Middle Indicative Form

The First Aorist Middle Indicative is formed similar to the active. The verb λύω is identified by the augment (ε-), followed by the stem (-λυ-), then the tense sign (-σα-), and finally by the personal pronoun ending.

Singular		Plural
1 st	ε-λύ-σα-μη I loosed myself	1 st	ε-λύ-σά-με-θα we loosed ourselves
2 nd	ε-λύ-σω you loosed yourself	2 nd	ε-λύ-σα-σθε you loosed yourselves
3 rd	ε-λύ-σα-το he/she/it loosed himself/herself/itself	3 rd	ε-λύ-σαν-το they loosed themselves

First Aorist Verbs

Example:

απεκριθη αυτοις ο Ιησους ειπον υμιν και ου πιστευετε (John 10:25a)

Jesus answered them, “I told you, and you are not believing”

Notice: most aorist middle verbs are classified as deponent. The deponent is to be translated as an active verb. In the example above the middle would normally be translated “Jesus himself answered,” but since it is deponent one translates in the active, “Jesus answered.”

Changes to the Sigma

Changes occur when a verb stem ends in a consonant followed by the sigma suffix. These changes are as follows:

- Verb stems ending with a liquid consonant λ, μ, ν and ρ usually drop the σ and have a change in the accent (other changes may occur – refer to a lexicon).
- Verb stems ending with a mute consonant change as follows: (i) palatal κ, γ, χ before σ changes to ξ; (ii) labial π, β, φ before σ changes to ψ; (iii) dental τ, δ, θ before σ drops out.

Practice

A. Memorize the vocabulary.

B. Memorize the First Aorist Active Indicative.

C. Translate the following sentences.

1. εν τω εστιν η αγαπη ουχ οτι ημεις ηγαπησαμεν (we loved) τον θεον αλλ’ οτι αυτος ηγαπησεν ημας. (1 Jn 4:10)
2. Ταυτα εγραψα υμιν ινα ειδητε (you may know) οτι ζων εχετε αιωνιον. (1 Jn 5:13)
3. παντες εξεκλιναν (turn) αμα (together) ηχρεωθησαν (useless) ουκ εστιν ο ποιων (doing) χρστοτητα (good), ουκ εστιν εως (until) ενος (one). (Rom 3:12)
4. ους δε προωρισεν (he predetermined), τουτους και εκαλεσεν (he called) και ους εκαλεσεν, τουτους και εδικαιωσεν ους δε εδικαιωσεν, τουτους και εδοξασεν. (Rom 8:30)
5. και αυτη εστιν η επαγγελια (promise) ην αυτος επηγγειλατο (promised) ημιν, την ζων την αιωνιον (eternal). (1 John 2:25)

καινος, -η, -ον	new	πρωτος, -η, -ον	first

Third Declension Nouns

The final noun form to learn is the third declension. The third declension is also known as the consonant declension because most of the nouns have stems ending in a consonant. Where the first declension's predominant ending vowel sound is alpha (α) and the second declension omicron (ο), the third declension is more complex as it spans essentially all the remaining nouns. Though the third declension is known as the consonant declension, it also includes the semivowel endings iota (ι) and upsilon (υ). Where the first and second declensions are based or formed from the nominative singular, the third is generally formed from the genitive singular with the -ος removed and the proper endings added to the stem.

The great grammarian A.T. Robertson points out that the three declension groupings are for convenience and are a recent (seventeenth century) paradigm. The older grammars had ten or more!¹⁴ "It is important to note that as the semivowels and sigma (σ) fall out between vowels, a good deal of contraction results."¹⁵

To memorize all the possible forms is impractical at this point and therefore not required. The idea is that the student identifies the most common form and understands that there are others. Do not be discouraged by the complexity of the third declension noun, memorize the basic form for πατηρ, do the exercises, and move on to the next section. The following third declension form is the usual form memorized.

¹⁴ A.T. Robertson, A Grammar of the Greek New Testament In the Light of Historical Research (Nashville:Broadman Press, 1934), p. 247

Ray Summers and Thomas Sawyer list seven different forms in their grammar¹⁶. It is recommended that the interested reader consult their grammar for a through explanation of the nuances of each subform within the third declension form.

1. Liquid Stem Nouns¹⁷

Liquid Nouns are nouns whose stem ends with a liquid consonant nu (ν) or rho (ρ). For example, to build the word πατήρ – father, it is identified as a masculine whose stem is identified by the genitive singular πατρός with the removal of the -ος ending, leaving πατήρ.

Singular			Stem πατήρ - father
			Plural
Nom	πατήρ	father	Nom/Voc	πατερες	fathers
Gen/Abl	πατρός	of/from a father	Gen/Abl	πατερων	of/from fathers
Dat/Loc/Inst	πατρι	to/in/by a father	Dat/Loc/Inst	πατρασι(ν)	to/in/by fathers
Acc	πατερα	father	Ac	πατερας	fathers
Voc	πατερ	father

2. Mute Stem Nouns

Nouns whose stem ends with a mute consonant (β, γ, δ, θ, κ, π, τ, φ, χ).

Singular		Stem ελπίς - hope
		Plural
Nom	ελπίς	Nom/Voc	ελπιδες

Practice

- Memorize the vocabulary.
- Memorize the third declension endings for father & city.
- Translate the following sentences.
 - τοιουτον (such) εχομεν αρχιερα, ος εκαθισεν (he sat) εν δεξια (on the right) του θρονου της μεγαλωσυνης (majesty) εν τοις ουρανοις (Heb. 8:1b) .
 - Γραφω υμιν, τεκνια, οτι αφεωνται (forgiven) υμιν αι αμαρτια δια το ονομα αυτου. (1 Jn 2:12).
 - πας γαρ ος αν (no exact english equivalent) επικαλεσηται (he called) το ονομα κυριου σωθησεται (he will be saved). (Rom 10:13) .
 - ωσπερ (just as) γαρ ο πατηρ εχει ζωην εν εαυτω ουτως (thus,so) και τω υιω εδωκεν ζωην εχειν εν εαυτω. (John 5:26)

Second Aorist Verbs

Vocabulary

αλλά	but	ιματιον, τό	clothing
αμαρτάνω	I sin	Ἰησους, ο	Jesus, Joshua
ανοίγω	I open	οσος, - η, -ον	as much as, as great as ανιστημι	I rise	οτι	because, that αποθνησκω	I die	παιδιον, τό	child, infant
γαρ	for (conj.)	τόπος, ο	place
διδάσκαλος, ο	teacher	τότε	then (adv.)
επαγγελία, η	promise	χαρά, η	joy
εργον, τό	work	ως	as, while, when
ευαγγέλιον, τό	gospel, good news

There are words in the second aorist that do not resemble anything like their present form. This is because some are older verbs (going back to the Attic) that were still commonly used, but said to be obsolete. For example:

	Present Form		2 nd Aorist Form
βλέπω	I see	ειδον	I saw
ερχομαι	I come, go	ηλθον	I came, went
εσθίω	I eat	εφαγον	I ate
λέγω	I say, speak	ειπον	I said, spoke
φέρω	I bear, bring	ηνεγκον	I bore, brought

The second aorist is not translated differently than the first aorist, it is just another form. The second aorist is sometimes referred to as the irregular form and as such is often times difficult to identify.

Chapter Twelve

Second Aorist Active Indicative

While the first aorist is distinguished by the addition of the sigma, the second aorist is identified by the addition of the augment (ε-) followed by the aorist tense stem (-λιπ-), then finally adding the personal pronoun ending.

Singular			Plural
1 st	ελιπον	I left	1 st	ελίπομεν	we left
2 nd	ελιπες	you left	2 nd	ελίπετε	you left
3 rd	ελιπε(ν)	he/she/it left	3 rd	ελιπον	they left
Infinitive: λίπειν to leave

Example:

ειπεν ουν (then) παλιν αυτοις ο Ίησους αμην αμην λεγω υμιν οτι εγω ειμι η θυρα (door) των προβατων (sheep) (John 10:7).

Then Jesus said to them again, “truly, truly I say to you, that I, I am the door of the sheep.”

Second Aorist Middle Indicative

Singular			Plural
1 st	ελιπόμην	I left (for) myself	1 st	ελιπόμεθα	we left (for) ourselves
2 nd	ελιπου	you left (for) yourself	2 nd	ελίπεσθε	you left (for) yourselves
3 rd	ελιπετο	he/she/it left (for) him/her/itself	3 rd	ελίποντο	they left (for) themselves

Infinitive: λιπέσθαι to leave oneself

Example:

ειπεν αυτοις Ίησους αμην αμην λεγω υμιν πριν (before) Αβρααμ γενεσθαι εγω ειμι (John 8:58).

Jesus said to them, “truly, truly, I say to you, before Abraham was, I AM.”

The Future Tense

The Greek future, as in English, generally denotes what is going to take place. The future is built upon aoristis (punctiliar) roots in some verbs and durative roots in others. The kind of action may be either punctiliar (action at a certain point) or durative (linear), but is usually punctiliar. The function of the future is summarized as follows:

1. Predictive. The simple future is used as a predictive or “what is going to happen.”¹⁸ For example:

ος δ' αν πίη εκ του υδατος ου εγω δώσω αυτω ου μη διψήσει εις τον αιωνα, αλλα το υδωρ ο δώσω αυτω γενήσεται εν αυτω πηγη υδατος αλλομενου εις ζωην αιωνιον (John 4:14)

But whoever drinks of the water that I will give him will never thirst. But the water that I will give to him will become in him a fountain of water springing up into everlasting life.

¹⁸ In English the future uses “shall” in the first person, and “will” in the second and third, however, modern American English no longer holds firm to this rule.

Chapter Thirteen

2. Imperative. The future may be expressed as an imperative. This use in the New Testament is almost always used with Old Testament quotations and is common in classical Greek.¹⁹ For example:

ο δε εφη αυτω αγαπησεις κυριον τον θεον σου εν ολη τη καρδια σου και εν ολη τη ψυχη σου και εν ολη τη διανοια σου (Matt. 22:37)

And He said to him, “You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, and with all your mind.”

3. Deliberative. The future may also be used in the deliberative (Latin deliberare “consider”) sense as a rhetorical question. For example:

πως ημεις εκφευξομεθα τηλικαυτης αμελησαντες σωτηρίας, ητις αρχην λαβουσα λαλεισθαι δια του κυρίου υπο των ακουσάντων εις ημας εβεβαιωθη (Hebrews 2:3)

How will we escape if we neglect so great a salvation? After it was at the first spoken by the Lord, it was confirmed to us by those who heard.

Future Active Indicative Form

The future verb of λύω is identified by its stem (λυ-) followed by a sigma (-σ-), followed by a thematic vowel (-ο/ε-), then followed by the active personal pronoun ending (-ω).

Singular

1 st	λύ-σω	I will loose
2 nd	λύ-σεις	you will loose
3 rd	λύ-σει	he/she/it will loose

Plural

1 st	λύ-σο-μεν	we will loose
2 nd	λύ-σε-τε	you will loose
3 rd	λύ-σου-ι(ν)	they will loose

Infinitive: λύσειν to loose

There are a number of rules regarding the changing of the thematic vowel and how the verb ends.

a) Verbs ending with a consonant.

i) Liquid consonants λ, μ, ν, & ρ: the sigma (σ) is dropped. For example, μένσω becomes μένω (I will remain).

ii) Sibilant consonants σ, ζ, ξ, & ψ: the sibilant in the stem before the sigma is dropped. For example, σωζω becomes σώσω (I will save).

¹⁹ Daniel Wallace, Greek Grammar Beyond the Basics (Grand Rapids: Zondervan Publishing 1996), p. 569

Future Verbs

- iii) Mute consonants of the palatal group κ, γ, χ: the palatal before the σ is changed to ξ.
For example, αγω becomes αξω (I will lead).
- iv) Labial consonants π, β, φ: the labial before the σ is changed to ψ. For example, βλέπω becomes βλέψω (I will see).
- v) Dental consonants τ, δ, θ: the dental before the σ drops out. For example, πείθω becomes πείσω (I persuade).
- b) Some verbs that are regular in the present system are deponent in the future. For example γινώσκω becomes γνώσομαι (I will know).

Future Middle Indicative Form

Singular			Plural
1 st	λύ-σο-μαι	I will loose myself	1 st	λύ-σο-με-θα	we will loose ourselves
2 nd	λύ-ση	you will loose yourself	2 nd	λύ-σε-σθε	you will loose yourselves
3 rd	λύ-σε-ται	he/she/it will loose him/her/itself	3 rd	λύ-σον-ται	they will loose themselves

Infinitive: λύσεσθαι to loose oneself

Future Indicative of εἰμι

Singular			Plural
1 st	εσομαι	I will be	1 st	εσομεθα	we will be
2 nd	εση	you will be	2 nd	εσεσθε	you will be
3 rd	εσται	he/she/it will be	3 rd	εσονται	they will be

First Aorist Passive Indicative

The Greek first aorist passive indicative of λύω is built by adding the augment (ε-) to the present stem (-λυ-), followed by the sign of the first aorist passive (-θ-), then a long thematic vowel (-η-), and finally the personal ending (-ν).

Singular		Plural
1 st ελύθην	I was loosing	1 st ελύθημεν	we were loosing
2 nd ελύθης	you were loosing	2 nd ελύθητε	you were loosing
3 rd ελύθη	he/she/it was loosing	3 rd ελύθησαν	they were loosing

Infinitive: λυθηναι to be loosed

Chapter Fourteen

There are a number of rules regarding changes that take place before the sign of the first aorist (θ), the thematic vowel (η), and how the verb ends.

- i) Liquid consonants λ, μ, ν, & ρ: the nu (ν) is dropped before the theta (θ). For example, κρίνω becomes κριθην (I was judged).
- ii) Sibilant consonants σ, ζ, ξ, & ψ: the sibilant is changed to sigma (σ) before the theta (θ). For example, δοξάζω becomes εδοξάσθην (I was glorified).
- iii) Mute consonants of the palatal group κ, γ, χ: the palatals kappa (κ) and gamma (γ) change to chi (χ) before the theta (θ). For example, αγω becomes ηχθην (I was led).
- iv) Labial consonants π, β, φ:
 - (1) The labials pi (π) and beta (β) change to phi (φ) before the theta (θ). For example, λείπω becomes ελειφθην (I was left).
 - (2) The labial phi (φ) causes the theta (θ) to drop out and the form becomes the second aorist. For example, γράφω becomes εγράφην (I was written)
- v) Dental consonants τ, δ, θ: the dental before the theta (θ) is changed to a sigma (σ). For example, πείθω becomes επείσθην (I was persuaded).

Example: ος παρεδόθη δια τα παραπτώματα ημων και ηγεσθη δια την δικαίωσιν ημων. (Rom. 4:25)

Who was delivered up because of our offenses and was raised because of our justification.

Second Aorist Passive Indicative

The second aorist passive indicative is formed like the first aorist with the exception of the theta (θ). The second aorist passive indicative of αποστέλλω is formed by moving the prepositional prefix (απ-) to the far left and adding the epsilon augment (-ε-) to the front of the second aorist stem (-σταλ-), then the long vowel (-η-), and finally the personal ending (-ν).

Singular		Plural
1 st απεστάλην	I was sent	1 st απεστάλημεν	we were sent
2 nd απεστάλης	you were sent	2 nd απεστάλητε	you were sent
3 rd απεστάλη	he/she/it was sent	3 rd απεστάλησαν	they were sent Infinitive: απεσταληναι to be sent

Example: Ἐπεφάνη γαρ η χάρις του θεου σωτήριος πασιν ανθρώποις (Titus 2:11)

For the grace of God that brings salvation has appeared to all men.

Future Passive Indicative

The future passive indicative of λύω is formed by the use of the stem (λυ-), adding the sign of the aorist passive (-θη-), the sign of the future (-σ-), then the connecting vowel (-ο-), and finally the middle ending (-μαι).

Singular		Plural
1 st λυθήσομαι	I will be loosed	1 st λυθησόμεθα	we will be loosed
2 nd λυθήσῃ	you will be loosed	2 nd λυθήσεσθε	you will be loosed
3 rd λυθήσεται	he/she/it will be loosed	3 rd λυθήσονται	they will be loosed

Infinitive: λυθήσεται to be loosed

Example: πολλῶ σὺν πολλῶν δικαιοθέντες νῦν ἐν τῷ αἱματί αὐτοῦ σωθησόμεθα δι' αὐτοῦ ἀπο τῆς ὀργῆς. (Rom 5:9)

Much more then, having now been justified by His blood, we will be saved from the wrath through Him.

The Imperfect Tense

The Greek imperfect expresses action as going on or continuous action in past time. It is said to indicate durative (linear) action in the past. The imperfect denotes an incomplete action. The action is on going and is not yet brought to its intended accomplishment. The function of the imperfect is summarized as follows:

1. Progressive (Descriptive). The progressive imperfect describes action in progress in past time and is the most commonly used. There are two characteristics of the progressive imperfect: (a) Progressive imperfect of description – the process is represented as actually going on in past time; and (b) Progressive imperfect of duration – the action is viewed as having gone on in past time but without regard to having been completed at a given point in the past. It is graphically represented as (_____). For example:

και ηκουον οι μαθηται αυτου (Mark 11:14)

“...and his disciples were listening”

2. Repeated (Iterative). The repeated or iterative imperfect describes action as recurring at successive intervals or repeated action in past time. It is graphically represented as (_ _ _). For example:

Οι μεν ουν συνελθόντες ηρώτων αυτον λέγοντες ... (Acts 1:6)

“Therefore, when they had come together, they were asking him, saying ...”
(That is, they kept on asking Him repeatedly-again and again).

3. Inceptive. The inceptive imperfect denotes continuous action but emphasizes the initiation of a process. The beginning of an action rather than its progress. It is graphically represented as (._____). For example:

και ανοίξας το στόμα αυτου εδίδασκεν αυτους λέγων (Matt. 5:2)

Then He opened His mouth and taught them, saying:

Or, “he began teaching them,” as this introduces Jesus’ teaching.

Imperfect Active Indicative Form

The imperfect active indicative of λύω is formed by adding the epsilon augment (ε-) to the present stem (-λυ-) and adding the final personal ending (-ον).

The Perfect Tense

The Greek perfect tense is the tense of completed action so the perfect presents the action as a completed action or state with the resulting state as completed at the time of writing. The perfect tense implies a process, but views that process as having reached its consummation in a finished state.²⁰

The Greek perfect tense is said to be timeless since it conveys the fact that the action has occurred in the past, has come to a conclusion, and stands as a completed result. The perfected action can be graphically represented as (--|-->).

In the New Testament the perfect serves as a significant theological instrument since it views action as a finished product. It looks at both ends of the action, implying a process, and views the process as having reached its consummation, exiting in a finished state. The perfect is often used for hearing (you have heard), seeing (you have seen), written (having been written), knowing (having known) and presents saving knowledge as a completed state of being.

Examples:

οτε ουν ελαβεν το οξος ο Ἰησους ειπεν τετελεσται, και κλινας την κεφαλην παρεδωκεν το πνευμα. (John 19:30)

Therefore when Jesus had received the sour wine, He said, “It is finished!” And He bowed His head and gave up His spirit.

Καὶ ὁ Ἰησοῦς ειπεν αὐτῷ ἀνάβλεπον ἡ πίστις σου σέσωκέν σε (Luke 18:42)

And Jesus said to him, receive your sight; your faith has saved you.

Perfect Active Indicative Form

The perfect active indicative of λύω is formed by adding a reduplication prefix (λε-), followed by the stem (-λυ-), followed by the tense sign (-κ-), and finally adding the personal pronoun ending (-α).

Singular			Plural
1 st	λέλύκα	I have loosed	1 st	λελύκαμεν	we have loosed
2 nd	λέλύκας	you have loosed	2 nd	λελύκατε	you have loosed
3 rd	λέλύκε(ν)	he/she/it has loosed	3 rd	λελύκασι(ν)	they have loosed or λέλυκαν

Infinitive: λελυκέναι to have loosed

Rule for Reduplication:

1. Verbs beginning with the consonants φ, θ, or χ are reduplicated with the smoother consonants π, τ, and κ respectively (e.g. φανερώ becomes πεφανέρωκα – I have revealed; θεάομαι becomes τεθέαμαι – I have seen; χαριτόω becomes κεχαρίτωμαι – I have been gifted).
2. Verbs beginning with a vowel or diphthong use a reduplication lengthened vowel (e.g. αγαπάω becomes ηγάπηκα – I have loved).
3. Verbs beginning with two consonants or a rho (ρ) often reduplicate using the epsilon (ε) (e.g. γινώσκω becomes εγνώκα – I have known).
4. Compound verbs (preposition plus verb) have the reduplication between preposition and the verb (e.g. εκβάλλω becomes εκβέβληκα – I have driven out).

Perfect & Pluperfect Verbs

Rules for the Tense Sign (κ):

1. A few perfects do not use the perfect tense sign (κ). These perfects are called second perfects (e.g. ακούω becomes ακήκοα – I have heard).
2. If the verb stem ends in the consonants τ, δ, or θ the consonant is dropped before the tense sign κ.

Perfect Middle and Passive Indicative Form

The perfect middle and passive indicative of λύω is formed by the reduplication added to the front (λε-) followed by the stem (-λυ-), and finally adding the middle personal pronoun ending (-μαι).

Singular		Plural
1 st	λέλυμαι I have loosed myself	1 st	λελύμεθα we have loosed ourselves
2 nd	λέλυσσαι you have loosed yourself	2 nd	λελυσθε you have loosed yourselves
3 rd	λέλυται he/she/it has loosed him/her/itself	3 rd	λελυνται they have loosed themselves

Infinitive: λελύσθαι to have loosed oneself, to have been loosed

The Pluperfect Tense

The Greek pluperfect is used sparingly in the New Testament, only occurring about eighty times. It functions similar to the perfect except it says nothing about the resulting state or condition up to the time of speaking. In other words, it expresses an action that took place in the past with the effect continuing or completed only up to a point, but both the action and effect are past experiences. In this sense, the pluperfect is a true past tense.

Example: τήν τε γὰρ ἐπιθυμίαν οὐκ ἠδαιν εἰ μὴ ὁ νόμος ἐλεγεν. οὐκ ἐπιθυήσεις. (Rom 7:7b)

For I would not have known about coveting if the Law had not said, “You shall not covet.”

Pluperfect Active Indicative

The pluperfect is formed just like the perfect except for the pluperfect ending (-ειν). To form the pluperfect add ε- (prefix) + -λε- (reduplication) + -λυ- (stem) + -κ- (sign of the perfect) + -ειν (pluperfect end). The pluperfect is found in the New Testament only in the indicative mood.

Singular		Plural
1 st	ελελύκειν I had loosed	1 st	ελελύκειμεν we had loosed
2 nd	ελελύκεις you had loosed	2 nd	ελελύκειτε you had loosed
3 rd	ελελύκει he/she/it had loosed	3 rd	ελελύκεισαν they had loosed

The Subjunctive

The Greek subjunctive is the mood of possibility. Mood expresses the relation of the action or state to reality. It answers the question: did it actually happen? There are two basic moods, that which is actual or real (indicative), and that which is possible (subjunctive, optative, imperative). The word subjunctive comes from the Latin subiungere meaning “to sub-join,” “yoke beneath,” whose core is subigere meaning “to compel to do a thing” (i.e., relating to the will). In grammar it is the mood of uncertainty, a wish, or an uncertain condition.

The following examples illustrate the distinction between the different moods:

- They believed (cf. John 2:11). The indicative mood expresses action that is really taking place.
- If you believe, you will see the glory of God (cf. John 11:40). The subjunctive mood expresses action which is not really taking place but which is objectively possible.
- Oh, that I knew where I might find Him (cf. Job 23:3-LXX). The optative mood expresses action which is not really taking place but which is subjectively possible. It is one step further removed from reality than the subjunctive.
- Believe (cf. Mark 1:15)! The imperative mood expresses action that is not really taking place but which is volitionally possible. It is a command that has a real possibility of completion.

The Optative

The Greek optative mood expresses something the speaker hopes will occur. It is the mood expressing a desire or wish. The word comes from the Latin optare meaning, “to wish for,” “desire,” so the usual translation “may,” or “should.” The optative is so rare in the New Testament that no additional time will be spent on this mood.

Example:

ξενίζοντα γάρ τινα εισφέρεις εις τας ακοας ημων. βουλόμεθα ουν γνωναι τί αν θέλοι ταυτα ειναι (Acts 17:20).

For you are bringing some strange things to our ears; so we want to know what these things mean.

Uses of the Subjunctive

There is a wider variety of grammatical uses for the subjunctive in the Greek than in English. There is no single translation so other keys are required for a proper translation. The beginning student may want to use the simple translation “may,” or “might” until he or she is comfortable with identifying options.

1. Simple. The simple subjunctive is translated by the words “may,” or “might.”²¹

ου γαρ απέστειλεν ο θεος τον υιον εις τον κόσμον ινα κρίνη τον κόσμον, αλλ’ ινα σωθη ο κοσμος δι’ αυτου. (John 3:17)

For God did not send the Son into the world to judge the world, but that the world might be saved through Him.

2. Hortatory. Used to exhort others to join in the action. The hortatory uses the first person subjunctive either singular or plural, but usually plural and usually placed at the beginning of the sentence. It is usually translated as “let us ...”

Ει ζωμεν πνύματι, πνεύματι και στοιχωμεν. (Gal. 5:25)

If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit.

3. Deliberative. The deliberative is used to ask a question where the audience is expected to think about the answer²². It may be: (a) a rhetorical question where no answer is expected; or (b) a real question.

²¹ In general use “may” for present or future, use “might” for past tense. This rule is not always held since in English might is weaker than may so context must determine usage.

Subjunctive & Optative Mood

Πως ουν επικαλέσονται εις ον ουκ επίστευσαν; πως δε πιστεύσωσιν ου ουκ ηκουσαν; πως δε ακούσωσιν χωρις κηρύσσοντος; (Rom. 10:14)

How then will they call on Him in whom they have not believed? How will they believe in Him whom they have not heard? And how will they hear without a preacher? (rhetorical question)

4. Prohibitive. The prohibitive is used to express a prohibition - a negative entreaty or command. It uses the negative particle (μη) with the second person aorist subjunctive and may be translated as “do not.”

Και λέγει μοι μη σφραγίσης τους λόγους της προφητείας του βιβλίου τούτου, ο καιρος γαρ εγγύς εστιν. (Rev. 22:10)

And he said to me, “Do not seal up the words of the prophecy of this book, for the time is near.”

5. Emphatic negation. The emphatic negation employs a double negative (ου μη) with the subjunctive to express a stronger negative and may be translated “by no means,” or “never.”

ο ουρανος και η γη παρελεύσεται, οι δε λόγοι μου ου μη παρέλθωσιν. (Matt. 24:35)

Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will never pass away.

6. Purpose clause. Purpose clauses indicate the purpose of the main clause of the sentence. A purpose clause contains the ινα with the subjunctive.

ουτος ηλθεν εις μαρτυρίαν ινα μαρτυρήση περι του φωτός, ινα πάντες πιστεύσωσιν δι’ αυτου. (John 1:7)

He came as a witness, to testify about the Light, so that all might believe through him.

7. Conditional Sentences. A conditional sentence contains two parts. The first is the condition “if...” The second is the fulfillment “then....” Dana and Mantey in their classic work define a conditional clause as a “statement of a supposition, the fulfillment of which is assumed to secure the realization of a potential fact expressed in a companion clause.”²³ The clause containing the supposition is called the protasis (“if” - the subordinate clause). The clause containing the statement based on the supposition is called the apodosis (“then” - the main clause).

²² This definition captures the essence and is derived from William Mounce, Basics of Biblical Greek (Grand Rapids:Zondervan Publishing, 1993), p. 287

²³ H.E.Dana & J.R.Mantey, A Manual Grammar of the Greek New Testament (New York:MacMillan Publishing, 1955), p. 286

Chapter Seventeen

- First class condition. The first class condition uses the indicative mood with the conditional particle (εἰ) in the protasis and any mood in the apodosis and hence is the condition of reality. The first class condition affirms reality.
- Second class condition. The second class condition uses the indicative mood with the conditional particle (εἰ) in the protasis and the particle ἄν with the indicative mood in the apodosis. The second class condition is the condition of impossibility. The particle ἄν has no exact English translation.
- Third class condition. The third class condition contains the conjunction εἰάν with the subjunctive in the protasis and any mood or tense in the apodosis. The third class condition is the condition of probable future fulfillment based on the condition.
- Fourth class condition. The fourth class condition uses the optative mood with the conditional particle (εἰ) in the protasis and the optative mood in the apodosis. The fourth class condition is the condition of future possible fulfillment but less likely than the third class condition. There are no fourth class conditions identified in the New Testament.

Conditional Sentences ²⁴

First	εἰ with indicative	any mood or tense	real possibility
Second	εἰ with indicative	ἄν with indicative	impossibility
Third	εἰάν with subjunctive	any mood or tense	probability
Fourth	εἰ with optative	optative	possibility

The Present Active Subjunctive

The Imperative

The imperative is the mood that expresses possibility and particularly a command. The word imperative comes from the Latin imperare meaning, “to command,” “give an order.” The imperative appears only in the second and third persons.

As would be expected, the present imperative expresses action in progress (continuous action). The aorist, however, expresses action whose time aspect is not defined. The imperative has the following uses in the Greek:

- Command. The command is the most common use. In translating the second person “you” is implied as in “(You) teach!” In the third person the word “let” is often used as in “Let him teach!”

πορευθέντες οὖν μαθητεύσατε πάντα τὰ ἔθνη, βαπτίζοντες αὐτοὺς εἰς τὸ ὄνομα τοῦ πατρὸς καὶ τοῦ υἱοῦ καὶ τοῦ ἁγίου πνεύματος, (Matt. 28:19)

Go therefore, teach all the nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and the Son and the Holy Spirit.

- Request. The imperative can be used to express a request or entreaty.

κύριε, δίδαξον ἡμᾶς προσεύχεσθαι, καθὼς καὶ Ἰωάννης ἐδίδαξεν τοὺς μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ (Luke 11:1).

Lord, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples.

- Condition. The imperative may be used as a condition of the form “If X, then Y will happen”²⁵ Where the imperative is found in the X (the protasis).

απεκρίθη Ἰησοῦς καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς. λύσατε τὸν ναὸν τούτου καὶ ἐν τρισὶν ἡμέραις ἐγερῶ αὐτόν (John 2:19).

Jesus answered and said to them, “Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up.” (Has the sense, “if you destroy this temple...”)

The Participle

The Greek participle is said to be a verbal adjective. It has characteristics of both a verb and an adjective. Fundamentally, a participle is a form of a verb that can function independently as an adjective. The word participle comes from the Latin particeps meaning “sharing,” “participating.” In a simple sense, a participle is an “ing” word. It can function as adverbial or adjectival depending on the context. As an adjective, the participle is declined in gender, number, case, and agrees in gender, number and case with that which it modifies. As a verb the participle has voice and tense.

- Adverbial participle. When the participle is functioning adverbially, the action described is directed toward the verb and translated with an adverbial phrase. For example:

διδασκων εν τω ιερω

“...while He taught in the temple...” Mark 12:35

(Also, one might use the participle as an introductory clause: “While teaching in the temple ...”)

- Adjectival participle. When the participle is functioning adjectivally, the action described is directed toward the noun or pronoun and translated with an adverbial phrase (simple “ing” word). For example:

και ιδοντες αυτον οι μαθηται επι την θαλασσαν περιπατουντα εταραχθησαν ...

“And when the disciples saw him walking on the sea, they were troubled...” Matt. 14:26

Verbal Properties

The adverbial use of the participle expresses the how, when, why and on what occasion the action takes place.

- Tense. Tense has to do with both time of action and kind of action. Kind of action is found in the participle itself. Time of action is derived from the main verb not the participle. (a) Present participles reflect continuous²⁶ action indicating action simultaneous with the main verb; (b) Aorist and perfect participles indicates action which is prior or antecedent to the action of the main verb; (c) Future participles indicate action that is following or subsequent to the action of the main verb.
- Voice. Voice is the same as with the verb, namely, identifying the relationship of the action to the subject: (a) Active means the subject is acting; (b) Passive means subject is being acted upon; (c) Middle means the action is returning to the subject, or acting on itself.
- Modifiers: (a) may have a direct object in the accusative; (b) may have prepositional phrases, adjectives, etc.

Adjectival Properties

The adjectival use of the participle agrees with the noun it modifies in: (a) gender; (b) number; and (c) case. It may function adjectivally: (a) attributively (has an article); (b) predicatively (does not have an article); or (c) substantively (acts as a noun).

Translating the Participle

It may be observed by the rather lengthy introduction that translating the participle is a tricky matter but with a few rules and a process it can be mastered. The translator need not be overwhelmed by the complexity. Keep it simple!

1. There is an article before the participle (the article agrees in number, case, and gender). The participle is acting either attributively or substantively. Translate using the definite article’s

²⁶ Dr. Mounce points out the importance that the term “present” participle should not be confused with present tense since the participle speaks not of time but rather kind of action, namely, continuous action. See William Mounce, Basics of Biblical Greek (Grand Rapids: Zondervan, 1993), p. 241

sense with a relative pronoun (who, which, that): “who...” or “the one who...” or “he who...”

2. There is no article before the participle. The participle is acting as a predicate adjective, or adverbially. Translate using the temporal sense and the “ing”: (a) present participle using “while...” or “as...”; (b) aorist participle using “when...” or “after...”; (c) future participle using “before...”

The Present Participle

The present participle indicates continuous action.

The Aorist Participle

The aorist participle, being a verbal adjective, will take its time relationship from the main verb. The kind of action is identified by the tense and with the aorist, the kind of action is undefined (punctiliar - action at a certain point). It says nothing about the action other than it occurred. The fundamental idea of the aorist is to denote action simply as occurring, without reference to its progress. It does not distinguish the action as complete or incomplete. It simply states that action took place in the past without regard to its duration.

Θαυμάζω οτι ουτως ταχέως μετατίθεσθε απο του καλέσαντος υμας εν χάριτι Χριστου εις ετερον ευαγγέλιον (Gal 1:6).

I am amazed that you are turning away so soon from Him who called you in the grace of Christ to a different gospel.

Four

	M/F	Neut.
N	τέσσαρες	τέσσαρα
GA	τεσσάρων	τεσσάρων
DLI	τέσσαρσι	τέσσαρσι
Ac	τέσσαρας	τέσσαρας

Indeclinable (5 to 100)

πέντε	five
εξ	six
επτά	seven
οκτώ	eight
εννέα	nine
δέκα	ten

Numbers

Ordinals

Ordinals are numbers describing position or rank in a series. The word ordinal comes to the English from the Latin ordo meaning “a series,” “line,” “row,” “order.” Ordinals are declined according to the first and second declensions.

πρωτος	first
δεύτερος	second
τρίτος	third
τέταρτος	fourth
